Frontier fighter: The Autobiography of George W. Coe Who Fought and Rode with Billy the Kid.

"George, I never expect to let up until I kill the last man who helped to kill Tunstall, or die myself in the act." Billy the Kid became one of the most notorious outlaws in Wild West history. The murder of his friend and employer, John Tunstall, led to the brutal Lincoln County War in New Mexico. Fighting with the Lincoln County Regulators, Billy left a trail of bullet holes and bodies. Towns became battlefields. George W Coe fought alongside Billy the Kid in the gun smoke of the Lincoln County War. Frontier Fighter tells the story of Coe's early life, his acquaintance with Billy the Kid, and his role in the infamous Lincoln County War. Coe's early life was far from glamorous and riddled with upheaval. Separated from his siblings and father, his mother dead, decided to follow in his cousin's footsteps and emigrated to New Mexico. Their arrival in Lincoln County came at an unsettled time. Competition was high between the only two general stores in the county. However, newcomers Alexander McSween and John H. Tunstall broke down this monopoly. It was through Tunstall that Coe met William H. Bonney, otherwise known as Billy the Kid. It was to be a doomed friendship. At the Gunfight of Blazer's Mills Coe lost a finger. By the end of the 1881 he had lost his friend. Through his private knowledge of Billy the author constructs a history of the outlaw. It is personal history. It is Billy the Kid as George W Coe knew him. It is Billy the young man. First published in 1934, when Coe was the last survivor of the Lincoln County War, Frontier Fighter is detailed first-hand account of one of the Wild West's most exciting incidents and the men who fought in it. George Washington Coe (1856 - 1941) was born in Brighton, in Washington County, Iowa to a Civil War veteran. Coe was a cowboy and gunman during the Lincoln County War, alongside Billy the Kid. After the war, Coe settled down peacefully and became a respected member of the community.

Here is the most detailed and most engagingly narrated history to date of the legendary two-year facedown and shootout in Lincoln. Until now, New Mexico's late nineteenth-century Lincoln County War has served primarily as the backdrop for a succession of mythical renderings of Billy the Kid in American popular culture. "In research, writing, and interpretation, High Noon in Lincoln is a superb book. It is one of the best books (maybe the best) ever written on a violent episode in the West."--Richard Maxwell Brown, author of Strain of Violence: Historical Studies of American Violence and Vigilantism "A masterful account of the actual facts of the gory Lincoln County War and the role of Billy the Kid. . . . Utley separates the truth from legend without detracting from the gripping suspense and human interest of the story."--Alvin M. Josephy, Jr.

The Lincoln County (New Mexico) War began over a dispute for the insurance money of Emil Fritz. It flared when the killing of John H. Tunstall became an international incident and started a chain reaction of murders. Long out of print, the work is available with a new Foreword by Marc Simmons and Preface by Michael L. Keleher, the author's son.

Billy the Kid, Wild Bill Hickok, Belle Starr, Wyatt Earp, the Younger Gang, the Dalton-Doolin Gang and Bat Masterson—these real-life lawmen and lawbreakers have been the basis of so many Hollywood Westerns that it has become difficult to discover where the truth ends and the legend begins. All actually became larger-than-life characters during their lifetimes, as contemporary newspapers and books embellished their deeds for their own purposes. But it was in Hollywood that the line between reality and myth was completely blurred. Each chapter-length entry here first focuses on the known facts of the people's lives and how each became truly legendary during their lifetimes. The reality is then compared to how they have been portrayed in the movies.

Examines the career of the young outlaw whose life and death were an expression of the violence prevalent on the American frontier.
