Guilty Pleasures is an enjoyable historical romance. It may not break new ground, but it tells a pleasant tale and tells it quite well. I love intelligent characters, and Daphne and Tremore were more than likable. I hope that Laura Lee Guhrke will give us the story of Tremore's sister, Lady Viola, in the future.

A passionate, rich, and wonderfully moving romance from RITA Award-winning author Laura Lee Guhrke.

Nearly every night on every major network, [unscripted] (but carefully crafted) [reality] TV shows routinely glorify retrograde stereotypes that most people would assume got left behind 35 years ago. In Reality Bites Back, media critic Jennifer L. Pozner aims a critical, analytical lens at a trend most people dismiss as harmless fluff. She deconstructs reality TV's twisted fairytales to demonstrate that far from being simple [guilty pleasures,] these programs are actually guilty of fomenting gender-war ideology and significantly affecting the intellectual and political development of this generation's young viewers. She lays out the cultural biases promoted by reality TV about gender, race, class, sexuality, and consumerism, and explores how those biases shape and reflect our cultural perceptions of who we are, what we're valued for, and what we should view as [our place] in society. Smart and informative, Reality Bites Back arms readers with the tools they need to understand and challenge the stereotypes reality TV reinforces and, ultimately, to demand accountability from the corporations responsible for this contemporary cultural attack on three decades of feminist progress.
